

INCLUSIVE & HEALTHY WORKPLACES

INTEGRITY AND RESPECT ENABLING PEOPLE TO THRIVE

An inclusive workplace describes an environment where diversity is celebrated and all employees are respected. It is a space where there is an understanding for every person's differences and how these contribute to a business' culture and results.

Initiatives focussed on empowering people and making physical changes to facilities help to create equal opportunities for all within the workspace. But to strive for a truly inclusive work environment, all employees need to play their part by treating people fairly and with respect. People should be encouraged to succeed regardless of their background or identity. By practising respect, every person feels valued for their achievements, abilities and qualities.

We are one team – so let's support and look after each other!

HOW TO BEHAVE INCLUSIVELY AND RESPECTFULLY

- ✦ Use inclusive language and treat people with respect
- ✦ Call out and report inappropriate behavior
There are different ways of reporting inappropriate behavior – to closest manager, to Reach Subsea HR-department, by raising a SOB card and by creating an Incident report - there are options for anonymous reporting if required.
- ✦ Take part in and champion initiatives that encourage inclusivity

APPROACHING MENTAL HEALTH

If you, or anyone else, is struggling with their mental health, please:

- Contact your manager or the Reach subsea HR-department, they can assist in getting the right support
- Talk to your colleagues, friends and family – you are not alone
